It certainly goes without saying, 2020 was an unbelievable year. I suspect like for many of you, at times the unknowns and the challenges seemed overwhelming. Personally, my wife and I had COVID, ...my son, who is 500 miles away, and members of his family, had COVID, ...and my daughter, who is 900 miles away, and members of her family, had COVID. Thankfully, we have all recovered and are doing well.

Professionally, in 2020, we’ve had staff and clients recover from COVID; for nearly 500 active clients, we converted to a telehealth modality practically over night; at any given time, we cared for almost 50 children on 2 residential treatment campuses who, for months, couldn’t leave campus and visit in-person with family; Childplace In-Home staff continued to provide services to clients while masked, gloved, and being required to take other, numerous precautions; and we managed through countless, additional circumstances and in ways I never dreamed we would encounter. Nevertheless, because of God’s continual provision and blessings, Childplace’s incredible staff, amazing foster parents, invested supporters and other stakeholders, and the resilience of the children and families with whom we work, Childplace continued to provide a place of hope and healing for children through our structured living environment, therapy services, educational support, and opportunities for spiritual growth; but we also see the value in providing time and opportunity for kids to be kids. Due to the chaotic and abusive circumstances that many of the children at Childplace have endured, the children we serve have limited experience in “just being a kid.” We believe these opportunities for play, exercise, socialization, recreation, and activities in the community will strengthen self-esteem, increase a child’s willingness to work with others and “get along”, and improve their overall outlook on life and future opportunities.

Childplace works with children who have experienced significant challenges in life, but despite extremely difficult life circumstances, Childplace provides an effective place of hope and healing for children through our structured living environment, therapy services, educational support, and opportunities for spiritual growth; but we also see the value in providing time and opportunity for kids to be kids. Staff Secure Treatment - the agency’s 22-acre, main campus provides multiple residential treatment options for children and adolescents who have been removed from their homes due to issues of abuse, neglect, and/or other chaotic issues. For example, The Bales Cottage for Girls provides a positive environment for a girl to live during her pregnancy, and frequently, for the days, weeks, and even months following the birth of her baby. The agency’s Horizons Program is a highly-structured treatment setting for young men who have exhibited histories of sexual reactive behavior and in need of professional intervention.

NORTH - provides individualized, specialized care for children dealing with intellectual disabilities and/or developmental delays. Clients receive supervision and care to meet their specialized needs and required level of care. The program is equipped with state-of-the-art sensory resources and developmental equipment to meet the clients’ needs.

Adoption Services- is licensed to work with adoptive families and birth moms from Indiana and Kentucky, and having placed children in 30 States, Childplace has worked with adoptive families all across the country. Childplace provides counseling, support, and answers to questions about adoption to women struggling with an unplanned pregnancy and families who are considering adoption.

Counseling Services- has a team of professionally licensed counselors and a child and adolescent psychiatrist. Childplace Counseling Services provides a place of hope and healing for numerous individuals (children and adults) and families from the community as well as those in our Residential & Foster Care programs. All of Childplace’s clinicians are master-level, licensed individuals who are trained in best-practice treatment modalities and approaches for dealing with intense histories of trauma and other clinical issues.

Foster Care Services- licenses foster homes in the Southern Indiana community. Families receive extensive background checks and training as they open their homes to children and adolescents in need of support, encouragement, and care.

Community Based Services (also known as In-Home Services) - provides therapy, case management, and visitation facilitation for families that are in need of professional services in the home, often to work to avoid the need for out-of-home services, or to support a child and his/her family as the child transitions home, or to the care of a grandparent, or alternative relative or care giver.

If you have any questions regarding the services Childplace provides, or have an interest in supporting the agency’s mission, please let us know, or visit www.childplace.org.
